Last Chance to Hang your Shingle

Local South County artists from El Camino Art Association have been transforming old redwood shingles pulled from The Land Conservancy's Octagon Barn into unique pieces of artwork at bargain prices, with funds contributing to the Octagon Barn Center and to South County youth art scholarships. The shingles have been significantly used at the Barn for over 100-years and are representative historic keepsakes.

Two limited-editions of Octagon Barn shingles, hand-painted by renowned artist Joyce Pike, are now available via purchase of raffle tickets, now available at $1.00 for 1 ticket or $5.00 for 6 tickets. Ms. Pike is a featured artist in "Art of the West Magazine", and "International Artist Magazine", as well as an award-winner of the American Artist Grand National Award for Floral Art. She has displayed her art in museums worldwide, from China to New York.

Full shingles measure approximately 6 by 36 inches and can be found with either horizontal or vertical paintings, most of which feature Barn-related scenes, priced at $35. Half shingles measure 6 by 18 inches and cost just $20. Custom design is also available for $50. All shingles are signed by the artist and include a certificate of authenticity from The Land Conservancy and El Camino Art Association.

The last 50 original, hand-painted Octagon Barn Art Shingles are available for purchase at the following locations:

- Star Automotive, 750 Francis St. San Luis Obispo, Ph. 805.543-STAR
- Central Coast Tax & Bookkeeping, 505 Orchard Rd. Suite B Nipomo, 9am-7pm, Ph. (805) 619-7400
